Unlocking Africa's economic potential through port development and optimisation

“ On behalf of EThekweni Municipality, I extend a warm welcome to delegates attending the Africa Ports Evolution 2017. Hosting an event of this magnitude forms an integral part of our strategy to promote our City as an aspiring Smart Port City and a leading tourist and events destination of choice. ”

Her Worship the Mayor of eThekweni Municipality, Cllr Zandile Gumede

Welcome to the 6th annual African Ports Evolution, proudly supported by PMAESA

On behalf of the Port Management Association of Eastern & Southern Africa (PMAESA), I would like to welcome all the African ports and transport stakeholders to Durban, South Africa, to attend the African Ports Evolution, the forum designed to offer solutions to Africa's transport challenges.

Africa's dynamic marketplace, agility and innovation will see how the transport industry plans to adapt to new trends and leverage off regional and international best-practices to create an enabling environment for trade and regional integration.

This year bears witness yet again to the resilience of Africa's transport players and the innovative ways that infrastructure projects are being implemented.

It is my strong belief that through this initiative we will take great strides together towards the end goal of interconnected transport infrastructure that will see African citizens prosper as we facilitate enhanced trade connections across Africa.

I wish you all productive deliberations.

Nozipho Mdawe
Secretary General, PMAESA

“ African Ports Evolution is part of Transport Week, and has been strategically designed to co-locate with African Rail Evolution and Exporters Week to ensure that all the most important transport stakeholders are under the same roof for two full days - networking, learning and benchmarking. ”

Our Keynote chairperson, Victor Kgomoewana, famously coined the phrase, "Africa is Open for Business" and so we invite you to join us at African Ports Evolution, a forum designed to service the maritime industry and enable trade facilitation so that business can thrive on the continent. We encourage you to make the most of the fantastic networking and tailored match-making opportunities we have orchestrated to ensure you meet all the right people at this mega event. ”

Conference programme

Day 2: Wednesday 18 October 2017

08:00 Breakfast infrastructure smart session: Designing and constructing future ports in Africa

With Africa's overall port utilisation capacity exceeding 70%, ports authorities and terminal operators are actively calling for partners in development to equip Africa's ports and harbours for post-neo-panamax shipping requirements to boost intra-African trade, reduce port congestion, increase port connectivity and throughput and accommodate the next generation of ships being developed around the world in the wake of the latest Panama Canal upgrade and expansion. For any expansion to occur, ports must regularly update their masterplan and conduct a detailed analysis of market projections and financial capacity. This session explores infrastructure requirements for African ports and unpacks best practices from PortMiami for sustainable port development and expansion with emphasis on the latest technologies available to drive sustainable construction, interoperability of systems, port efficiency and optimisation.

PortMiami case study: Long-term investments result in adequate benefits

- Learn about forecasts laid out in PortMiami's 2035 Master Plan
- Understand recent markets trends for both cruise and cargo industries and how these should influence your port's future development plans

Gerard Philippeaux Strategic Initiatives Manager, PortMiami, USA

SESSION 2.2.1 Benefits of creating a sustainable Port-City-Nexus

Chairperson: Andrew Robinson, Director, Norton Rose Fulbright South Africa Inc, South Africa

09:30 The Comprehensive Maritime Transport Policy for South Africa

Dumisani Ntuli, Acting Chief Director Maritime Policy and Legislation, Department of Transport, South Africa

09:45 Free zones: The secret ingredient for the economic growth of regional hub cities

Christopher Gunson, Partner, AMERELLER, United Arab Emirates

10:00 Sustainable ports in africa: An integrated "Building with Nature" approach to co-create value at the port-city nexus

Jill Slinger, University Professor of Environmental Systems Engineering, Delft University of Technology, The Netherlands

10:15 What's good for the port is good for the community

Gerard Philippeaux, Strategic Initiatives Manager, PortMiami, USA

10:30 Understanding the benefits of a Port-City-Nexus: why ports should create reciprocal synergies within their surrounding communities

- Developing 'free zones' to enable trade facilitation and turning environmental impact challenges into opportunities
- Driving the 'Green Port Agenda' to conserve the environment, improve health and safety of their staff, customers, marine life and surrounding communities
- Integrating ports into local society and businesses to alleviate congestion and increase local port connectivity

Moderator: Daniel Nzeki, CEO, Container Freight Stations Association of Kenya, Kenya
